SUBJECT: Potential Effects of the Elimination of the Milwaukee and Racine Parental Choice Programs on Public K-12 School Districts

At your request, I am providing information on parental choice programs and the potential revenue limit and general school aids effects on public K-12 school districts if the Milwaukee and Racine programs were eliminated.

Background

Under the Milwaukee, Racine, and statewide parental choice programs, the state pays a statutorily-determined maximum per pupil amount for children from eligible families to attend participating private schools. In 2014-15, the maximum per pupil payment for a K-8 pupil is $7,210 and for a 9-12 pupil is $7,856. For the Milwaukee program, the Department of Public Instruction is required by law to reduce the general aid for which the Milwaukee Public Schools (MPS) is eligible in 2014-15 by a net amount of 32.0% of the estimated total cost of the Milwaukee program, after consideration of aid that is paid to the City of Milwaukee to reduce the levy it raises on behalf of MPS. (Under the provisions of 2013 Act 20, this percentage will be reduced by 3.2 percentage points each year, until no aid reduction is made beginning in 2024-25.) The October 15, 2014, general aid calculation uses an estimate of $191.0 million for the total cost of the Milwaukee program in 2014-15. Thus, MPS's general aid will be reduced by a total of $61.1 million, with a state share of $129.9 million.

Under revenue limits, MPS can levy to make up for the aid reduction. Under 2007 Act 20, a separate aid program was created to provide aid to districts with high poverty. By law, any high poverty aid MPS receives must be used to offset the choice levy attributable to the general aid reduction. In 2014-15, MPS will receive $4.8 million in high poverty aid. After consideration of high poverty aid, the effective aid reduction for MPS related to the choice program is $56.3 million, which is 29.5% of the estimated cost of the program in 2014-15. The state thus funds 70.5% of the cost of the Milwaukee program, which is $134.7 million in 2014-15. This is the sum of the $129.9 million shown above plus the $4.8 million of high poverty aid.

Under 2013 Act 20, there is no longer an aid reduction made to the general aid for which the Racine Unified School District (RUSD) is eligible related to the Racine parental choice program. Also under that act, there is no aid reduction for any district related to the statewide parental choice program created under that act. Thus, other than MPS, no other districts' aid payments or property tax levies are directly affected by the financing structure of the choice programs. Expenditures for the Racine program are estimated to be $12.5 million in 2014-15, while expenditures for the statewide program are estimated to be $7.3 million in that year.

Elimination of the Milwaukee and Racine Parental Choice Programs

While choice programs are operating in Milwaukee, Racine, and statewide, this memorandum will consider only the potential effects of the elimination of the Milwaukee and Racine programs. Because of the relatively large size of the Milwaukee program, its elimination would have the greatest effect on the potential distribution of general school aids. While participation in the Racine program was capped during the 2011-13 biennium, participation has since increased to the point where, while RUSD would also be affected by the elimination of the Milwaukee program, it would also display some of the same aid characteristics as MPS if the Racine program were eliminated. Participation in the statewide program is limited to 500 pupils in 2013-14 and 1,000 pupils in 2014-15. The resulting aid effects related to the elimination of the statewide program would thus be relatively minor at this point. As a result, the revenue limit and general aid factors for all districts other than MPS and RUSD will be held constant and the changes to general aid resulting from the elimination of only the Milwaukee and Racine programs will be considered.

If the Milwaukee and Racine programs were eliminated, the state would no longer make payments to the parents of choice pupils in those programs. General fund expenditures related to the Milwaukee program would be reduced in an amount equal to 68.0% of the total cost of the program ($129.9 million in 2014-15). The 32.0% net choice program reduction made to MPS general school aids ($61.1 million in 2014-15) would also be eliminated. General fund expenditures related to the Racine program would be reduced by the total cost of that program ($12.5 million in 2014-15). Because the state does not have a commitment to fund a specified percentage of partial school revenues, any increase in the MPS or RUSD revenue limit that would result from choice pupils attending those districts would not automatically result in an increase in general school aids.

The fiscal effect of the elimination of the Milwaukee and Racine programs would depend in part on two factors. The first factor is how the total state share of those programs' costs ($142.4 million) would be appropriated in the absence of the programs. One option would be to appropriate the funding for general school aids to account for the possible attendance of an unknown percentage of students at MPS or RUSD. Another option would be to appropriate the funding to other programs or use it to improve the balance of the general fund. To illustrate the possible effects of the elimination of the programs, this memorandum will consider both options.

The second factor would be the number of pupils that would attend MPS or RUSD rather than pursue other educational opportunities, such as private schools or home schooling, and it is unclear how many would do so. To illustrate the possible revenue limit and general school aid effects of an alternative to eliminate the programs, this memorandum presents six hypothetical examples of the fiscal effect of the elimination of the program using the alternative assumptions that 0, 25, 50, 75, 90, or 100 percent of choice pupils attend MPS or RUSD.

Under revenue limits, one-third of the number of choice pupils that attend MPS or RUSD would count immediately under the three-year rolling average of enrollment. The MPS and RUSD revenue limits would fully reflect the addition of choice pupils only in the third year. Because general school aids are calculated using prior year membership and shared cost data, the addition of choice pupils would not directly affect the amount of aid received by MPS and RUSD until the next year. Once these pupils and their related shared costs would be fully included by MPS and RUSD for general school aid purposes, there would be aid shifts. Table 1 shows the potential revenue limit, general school aid, and levy changes that would have occurred in 2014-15 for MPS, RUSD, and the other districts in the state, in total, if the indicated percentage of choice pupils attended both MPS and RUSD and no additional funding had been appropriated for general school aids. Table 1 is calculated as if the pupils and costs had been fully phased-in and affected 2014-15 general school aids.

Table 2 shows the potential revenue limit, general school aid, and levy changes that would have occurred in 2014-15 for MPS, RUSD, and the other districts in the state, in total, if the indicated percentage of choice pupils attended both MPS and RUSD and the $142.4 million state share of the choice programs had been appropriated for general school aids. The same assumption used in Table 1 relating to fully phased-in cost is used in Table 2.

The attachments to this memorandum provide additional detail on the information presented in the tables. Attachment 1 shows the net general school aid payments received by school districts in 2014-15 under current law as well as the estimated payments these districts might have received under each of the alternative assumptions that 25, 50, 75, or 90 percent of choice pupils attended both MPS and RUSD and no additional general school aids funding had been appropriated. Attachment 2 shows the same information for the scenario under which an additional $142.4 million of general school aids funding had been appropriated. Under revenue limits, those school districts shown with an increase in aid would have decreased levies in an amount equal to the increase, while districts with an aid decrease would have the option of increasing their levies up to an amount equal to the decrease.

The aid changes shown in the tables and the attachments would reflect the effects of three factors. First, the elimination of the choice program reduction to MPS general school aids would have benefited MPS, with $61.1 million of the increase in general school aids for MPS in each scenario attributable to this factor. Second, for those scenarios under which some percentage of pupils would attend MPS and RUSD, statewide membership would have been increased and the tertiary guarantee would have been slightly lower, which would have reduced the tertiary aid received by most districts with tertiary costs. Third, under the same scenarios, membership and shared costs for MPS and RUSD would have been increased, which would have resulted in those districts receiving more aid under the equalization aid formula, and a lower secondary guarantee would have resulted to fully distribute the amount appropriated for general school aids. However, under the scenarios under which additional aid would have been appropriated, the reduction in the secondary guarantee would not have been as great, resulting in additional aid for most districts compared to the scenarios under which additional aid would not have been appropriated.

While the analysis above focuses on the effect of the elimination of the Milwaukee and Racine programs on general school aids, there would also be smaller effects on two other state aid programs. As noted, high poverty aid to MPS ($4.8 million in 2014-15) must be used to offset the choice levy attributable to the general aid reduction. In the absence of the Milwaukee program, the Legislature would have to make a decision as to whether to eliminate high poverty aid for MPS or specify that it be placed under revenue limits and used to reduce the MPS levy, as is the case for all other districts receiving high poverty aid under current law. In addition, the attendance of some percentage of choice pupils at MPS and RUSD would result in a higher per pupil aid entitlement for those districts. In 2014-15, each district receives a $150 per pupil aid payment from a sum sufficient appropriation. If, for example, all choice pupils had attended MPS in 2014-15 and been fully phased-in for its revenue limit count for that year, MPS per pupil aid would have increased by $3.7 million in that year, while RUSD per pupil aid would have increased by nearly $170,000.

It should be noted that, while MPS and RUSD would gain both revenue limit authority and general school aids as a result of choice pupils attending those districts when fully-phased in, in the first year after elimination of the choice programs, MPS and RUSD would be responsible for educating a given number of additional pupils, but only receive revenue limit authority for one-third of that amount, since revenue limits use a three-year rolling average. Also, since general school aids are calculated using prior year information, MPS and RUSD would not receive general aid for any additional pupils or shared costs in the first year after elimination of the choice programs.

It must be emphasized that these examples are speculative. Assumptions have been made on the effects on MPS and RUSD membership and shared costs and the examples are calculated as if all of these factors had been fully effective in 2014-15. Changes to the assumptions could significantly modify the results. These examples should be considered as an illustration of the potential range of effects of an alternative to eliminate the choice programs.

I hope this information is helpful. Please contact me if you have further questions.
