The Wisconsin Economic Development Association (WEDA), a statewide organization of 450 economic development professionals, is encouraged by the Senate Democrats' commitment to economic development through its recently announced Connecting Opportunity, Research and Entrepreneurship (C.O.R.E.) Jobs Act.

Authored by Sen. Julie Lassa (D-Stevens Point) and Sen. Pat Kreitlow (D-Chippewa Falls), C.O.R.E. contains several initiatives that aim to create and retain jobs and invest in Wisconsin's workforce development system. According to WEDA President Patrick Drinan, "Many of the ideas contained within this proposal are reflective of positions that WEDA has continuously advocated for and supported. As Wisconsin's economic development voice, WEDA looks forward to working with Senators Lassa and Kreitlow as this proposal moves through the legislative process, with the aim of enhancing Wisconsin's business climate and economic positioning.
