

Halloween at the Tennesse's

Each year since purchasing the home in 2000, Paul Tennesse's decorates in the theme of The Nightmare Before Christmas, a 1993 stop-motion film by Tim Burton.

His display spreads through seven additional lawns until Halloween. After that, the decorations are confined to his lawn, changing week-by-week with the film's timeline, until New Years.

Paul also decorates his home for Easter and Independence Day. It has even been decorated to celebrate the Supreme Court's legalization of gay marriage.
