Rep. Conley Cosponsors Economic Justice Bill of Rights

MADISON - Yesterday, a group of Democratic legislators released an Economic Justice Bill of Rights for All Wisconsinites, authored by Rep. Kristina Shelton (D-Green Bay) and Rep. Francesca Hong (D-Madison). The Economic Justice Bill of Rights states that every Wisconsinite, whether urban, suburban or rural; white, African American, APIDA, Latinx, or Native, LGBTQ+, and people of all ability statuses are entitled to certain rights:

An Economic Justice Bill of Rights for All Wisconsinites

All Wisconsinites deserve the right to:

- An equitable, living-income and livelihood
- A union, public or private, and collective bargaining
- Affordable and accessible high-quality healthcare
- Equitable and accessible public education and child care
- Pollution-free water and a healthy planet
- High quality, safe housing
- Reliable, climate-friendly transportation
- A fair and equitable justice system
- Life, self-determination, and liberation regardless of race, ethnicity, socioeconomic background, sexual orientation, gender identity, religion, disability status and age
- Live free from fear of racial, religious, and gender oppression(s)

“I am thrilled to support this joint resolution alongside my colleagues. It is a commitment to working towards equal opportunities for all Wisconsinites,” Rep. Conley stated. “During my time in the Legislature, I plan to support legislation that furthers equity for all Wisconsinites. This Economic Justice Bill of Rights does just that,” Rep. Conley added.
