History and Our Way Forward

This year marks the 50th anniversary of the moon landing, when great, brave and courageous American's dared to dream and worked together from across different areas and different political parties to make history.

This celebration got me to thinking about if people today could come together again to do something great. This thought lead me to believing in American exceptionalism and that not all heroes wear capes.

We can see it every day with the recognition of members of our great military fighting for our country's freedom to things that often go unnoticed such as when someone volunteers their time to serve others in our local communities and even in something as small as holding the door for a stranger.

There are heroes among us, we just might not know it.

As we move forward into the summer, I encourage each of us to take time to reflect on what we can do to continue to grow our communities and dream bigger and while we do this remember to thank people that sacrifice for us including servicemen and women, and volunteers of our summer programs and many fairs. These people come from many different backgrounds, political beliefs, and nationalities much like the team that helped land on the moon.

We as a nation and as our local communities are stronger together and together we can make a difference in the lives of so many others around us.

I hope you continue to have a great summer and to remember to hydrate.

As always, feel free to contact my office with questions, comments, or concerns.
