Happy New Year!

We finally did it. We got through 2020, which was probably one of the most uncertain years on record for many of us. First I'd like to wish each and every one of you a happy New Year! With that said, we are still facing many challenges including maintaining our health, rebuilding our economy and many other issues that are carrying over from the previous year but we must not lose hope for 2021.

As the first doses of the vaccine begin to be distributed there is a light at the end of all of these shutdowns and government policies. Hopefully our state and country will start to go back to normal soon. However, there will still be many families and businesses struggling to stay afloat. Hopefully a federal package will soon help those who need it the most.

In the meantime, some things that we can work on include our New Year resolutions. A big focus for the coming year should be on our mental and physical wellbeing and to teach our children healthy ways to cope as well. While this is a common resolution, it is more important now than ever before. Some ways to improve our mental and physical health include going for a walk, having a new hobby or project to work on and to continue to have social interactions with our friends, even if sometimes these are virtual.

Even though Christmas is over, it is still important to help each other as well so that we can get back on our feet as strong local communities. Please continue to give to our local food pantries and to support your neighbors through this difficult time.

I hope 2021 brings joy and new opportunities to you and your families and again I thank you for allowing me to represent and serve the 92nd Assembly District.

As always, feel free to contact my office with questions, comments, or concerns at Rep.Pronschinske@legis.wi.gov.
