Volunteerism in 2020

Usually during this time of year we would begin volunteering for our local festivals, sporting events, fundraising efforts and many other community activities. With the current situation our country is facing many of these events have been canceled, but there are still many opportunities to volunteer.

Many of our local food pantries are requesting food donations for many of our friends and neighbors who may be in need. Our local food pantries can be found from our local chamber of commerce organizations and often through the local church. Animal shelters and humane societies will also happily accept dog food donations and pet toys to support their many animals.

If you are able, many blood drives are in desperate need of people to donate blood. In a time where medical and dental procedures are returning, it is imperative that our loved ones would be taken care if they needed blood. You can find a local blood drive at this link:

If manual labor is more your area of expertise, many of our farmers would deeply appreciate a helping hand or two. Even our senior neighbors may need help getting their groceries, mowing their yards and doing other daily activities they are currently struggling to participate in.

Remember that during difficult times in our history, it has always been more important to come together and support one another to get through than to divide ourselves.

Please continue to support our local and small businesses while looking for volunteer opportunities.

As always, feel free to contact my office with questions, comments, or concerns.
