Evers Reveals 2021-2023 Budget

Tuesday the 16th was a late night in Madison as Governor Evers held his second budget address. While his address was streamed virtually into the chamber he provided my colleagues and I with many things to consider.

I am looking forward to bipartisan issues in this budget such as funding for rural roads, money for flood projects, reducing drug costs, supporting agriculture and many others.

There are many things in this budget that I do not agree with however like raising taxes, expanding welfare programs, and spending massive amounts of tax dollars on needless partisan projects.

My biggest hope for this budget is that together we will be able to provide for more rural infrastructure and most importantly broadband. This last year has really showed the more urban areas how desperately the rest of the state needs internet for education, business, and many other vital functions.

While we may have a divided government at the moment, we should be able to come together and help our entire state be successful. This is critical for us to come out of the pandemic positively.

I encourage my constituents to reach out to my office with their thoughts on the budget so that I can better serve you.

As always, feel free to contact my office with questions, comments, or concerns at Rep.Pronschinske@legis.wi.gov.
