- 1:00 p.m. THE LEGISLATOR AS EMPLOYER: LEGAL REQUIREMENTS AND BEST PRACTICES
Elizabeth A. Erickson, Office Managing Principal, Jackson Lewis P.C.
Individuals campaign for the Legislature for many reasons. To become an employer and supervisor is probably not one of those reasons. This session will provide information about discrimination and harassment laws related to employing and supervising legislative staff.
- 2:30 p.m. BREAK

2:45 p.m. LEGISLATIVE SERVICE AGENCIES

Five nonpartisan legislative service agencies—the Legislative Audit Bureau, Legislative Council, Legislative Fiscal Bureau, Legislative Reference Bureau, and Legislative Technology Services Bureau—support the Legislature’s work in various capacities. This session will introduce newly elected legislators to the services and support that the following three agencies provide to the Legislature and legislators:

- Joe Kreye, Legislative Services Manager, Legislative Reference Bureau
- Staci Duros, Legislative Analyst, Legislative Reference Bureau

The Legislative Reference Bureau drafts all legislation for introduction in the Legislature, prepares the executive budget bill, writes analyses of legislation, conducts public policy research, and provides information about the Legislature and its proceedings.

- Joe Chrisman, State Auditor, Legislative Audit Bureau

The Legislative Audit Bureau conducts objective audits and evaluations of state agency operations to ensure that financial transactions have been made in a legal and proper manner and to determine whether programs are administered effectively, efficiently, and in accordance with the policies of the Legislature and the Governor.

- Jeff Ylvisaker, Director, Legislative Technology Services Bureau

The Legislative Technology Services Bureau is the single point of responsibility for providing technological services and support to the Legislature and its service agencies.

3:30 p.m. PUBLIC RECORDS LAW REQUIREMENTS

Anne M. Bensky, Assistant Attorney General, Department of Justice
Dan Schmidt, Principal Analyst and Operations Manager, Legislative Council

Under Wisconsin law, every legislator is a custodian of his or her records and must comply with the public records law. This session will explain how the public records law applies to legislators.
