Sen. Howard Marklein Welcomes Ag Day at the Capitol Visitors

Wisconsin Farm Bureau Federation Members Share Ideas, Ask Questions

MADISON— State Senator Howard Marklein (R-Spring Green) anticipates a busy day at the State Capitol tomorrow, January 27, 2016, in anticipation of Ag Day at the Capitol, an annual lobby day organized by the Wisconsin Farm Bureau Federation.

“I am looking forward to visiting with farmers and friends from throughout the 17th Senate District who are headed to the Capitol for Ag Day,” Marklein said. “We always have a tremendous showing from the 17th Senate District with dozens of members visiting our offices.”

“I always look forward to these conversations to learn more about how the largest industry in our Senate District is doing and how things look for the coming seasons.

Last week, I attended the Ag Economic Forum at the UW and learned about some of the financial and economic challenges we are facing in our industry this year.

Despite these challenges, I know the farm families in the 17th Senate District are engaged, strategic and have a lot of ideas and questions to discuss later today.”
